

? ? Strong White ? ?

(An Adaptation of Snow White)

By Avery M.

There once was a girl named Strong White. Her stepmother was a queen and a terrible sports coach. The queen was very vain and thought that she was the best. She had a magical clipboard which one day she asked who was the strongest and most athletic. The clipboard said, "My dear queen Strong White is." This made the queen furious.

She sent out her assistant coach to go kill her. So the assistant took Strong White out to the forest to kill her, but the assistant coach admired Strong White so she told her to run away.

So Strong White went deeper into the forest and got lost and scared but she said to herself, "I've got to be brave." When she was walking she saw a small cottage. She went inside and saw seven small beds. She was very sleepy and climbed into the bed and put her head down and fell asleep.

Back at the castle the queen asked the magic clipboard, "who is the strongest and most athletic?" "Your majesty Strong White still is." This made the queen go ballistic!!

Back at the cottage Strong White woke up to see seven pairs of eyes looking down at her. They were seven dwarfs all of them in different sports jerseys on. There was soccer, lacrosse, basketball, football, baseball, hockey, and golf.

Strong White introduced herself and the dwarfs said that she could stay.

The next day the queen took one of her daughter's old basketballs and dipped it in poison and disguised herself as a little old lady selling balls. She went to the dwarfs cottage and saw Strong White. She offered the basketball to the young girl. The minute Strong White touched the ball she collapsed. The minute the queen turned around there where the seven sporty dwarfs all looking very, very, very mad and upset.

They chased her off the cliff. Then the dwarfs very carefully placed Strong White into a crystal coffin. While they were grieving a handsome young prince came and asked what's wrong. The dwarfs told him and the prince leaned down over the beautiful princess and kissed her. Strong White woke up. The prince and her married. They had two children. One was a girl named Brave White and a boy named Fearless Black. They lived happily ever after!

The End