

Greenilocks, the Greedy Girl 🐻🐻🐻

(An adaptation of Goldilocks and the Three Bears)

By: Ella S.

Hi! I am Greenilocks, but everybody calls me Greenie. I would like to tell you about the worst day I had over the summer.

It all started off with me walking through the beautiful forest and I came across a house. I was very tired, so I decided to go in and take a little nap. I went inside and I peeked around to see if anybody was home. Lucky for me no one was there. I went into a room and looked for a place to lay down. The first bed I tried was the biggest one. It was awfully hard. The second one I tried was not too big, but way too soft. The last and final bed was smaller in size. I laid down and it was just right! 😴 I closed my eyes and right before I fell asleep, I was awakened by a terrible rumble from my belly. So I got up and went to the kitchen to find some food.

I went into the kitchen and saw three bowls of curry on the table. The curry in the bowls were yellow, red and green. I looked at the bowls and decided to eat the yellow one first. I took a bite and said “huh, this tastes bland.”

I decided to take a bite of the green curry. I thought the green curry would be the best because it's the color of my awesome hair! I took a bite. My face turned beet red. I started to pant and wipe the spicy curry off my tongue. I ran to the kitchen sink and I put my mouth under the faucet, I turned on the water and nothing came out. “Why is there no water!?” 💧 I screamed. I thought out loud “I need water or else this is going to burn off my tongue!” I threw open the fridge and there was nothing inside. Tears started running down my face and I ran to the bathroom. I was in search of water and looking wherever I could find it. I turned on the bathroom sink faucet and nothing came out. I looked for somewhere else for water, and I thought I would do what I had to do... I opened the toilet looking for water and I saw something... it was a floating surprise! 🤩 I screamed “Why does no one know how to flush!” I was furious and still in need of water! I ran outside to the backyard and looked for the garden hose. Finally, sweet, sweet relief, the hose worked! My thirst was quenched! With the burning relief gone, I realized I was still hungry!

I went back to the kitchen to look for the red bowl. I hesitantly tried a bite. Lucky for me, it was just right! I loved it so much, I ate it all! As I was taking the last glorious bite, I suddenly heard a noise. It was the door. I didn't know what to do so I ran and hid behind the curtain. Suddenly a family came into the kitchen looking for their food, discussing the outrageous prices of plumbers to fix their water. I heard a young voice say "OMG, my curry is gone!" I heard two other voices say "someone ate my curry too! Who has been in our house?" I peeked out from behind the curtain, and there I saw them. I thought my eyes were going crazy but nope, three huge bears were standing right there!

I was so scared, I made a squeaky sound, "eek". I hid quickly so they wouldn't see me. But little did I know it was too late. I could feel them coming closer and I began to shake all over. Suddenly the curtain was ripped back and I gasped! Standing right in front of me was the biggest bear I have ever seen! In a great big booming voice he said "Who are you, and what are you doing here!?" My voice quivered and I said "uh, I am Greenie. I'm sorry I got lost and I was tired and hungry. This was the only place for miles!" The little bear said to me "wait a second, what about the Holiday Inn across the street?"

After a second of awkward silence I said “ I didn’t have any money so I came here.” The Mother Bear was so mad at me because she had worked all morning on preparing the curry for her family, that she made me pick up all the bear droppings in the backyard as payment for ruining their dinner! I really did learn that bears drop their business in the woods!

One thing I have always wondered is if the bears do their business outside, who left the floating surprise in the toilet?

There are two morals of this story, don’t break into other peoples houses, and more importantly - bears do “go” in the woods!