The Cute Puppy

(An Adaptation of The Ugly Duckling)

Once upon a time there was a puppy that was so cute. He was so cute when someone came in and saw it they texted everyone they knew to come see it and they did. Also the puppy at birth was only 1 pound and 1 ounce that made it cute in one way. Another way it was cute was it had beautiful blue eyes and a tiny little head with curled over ears. One more way it was cute was it had a big tongue that would lick you if the dog was happy. Also, if it was happy, it wagged its tail. It was a great, lovable, sweet, and cute dog.

Two weeks later, a rich family came in and the family wanted a dog. They wanted a small dog that would cuddle with the daughter. They had four people in their family, two parents that liked dogs, one daughter, and one son. The daughter loved pets more than anything. She even researched them. The family needed to be rich because the dog cost one million bucks because it was so cute. That family stayed there for thirty minutes talking to the manager about what it eats and other stuff about the dog. So, after talking, they decided to buy it. The family went home and played with it immediately.

The family played with the dog for four hours straight when they got home. The family also had another dog, this dog was a huge, mean dog. The next couple days the mean dog teased the cute dog because it was very jealous of the cute dog. He was so jealous of how much attention the cute dog was getting. After teasing the dog, it bit the cute dog, and it even whipped it with its tail. This made the cute dog feel bad about itself and it tried to let the family know about the other dog, and what it was doing. One time the dad saw the mean dog biting the cute dog. He put the mean dog in its cage, but this made the mean dog more encouraged to hurt the cute dog. This teasing and hurting that the mean dog was doing made the cute dog want to run away. So the cute dog was so sad it ran away from the family's house.

When he runs away he does not know where he's going to go. So in the streets a day later from the day he ran away he saw a gang of stray cats and joins them in their walk. He asks if he can live with them and tells them what happened at the last house he lived at. The cats say yes because they feel bad but the cute dog and the cats know how he does not fit in. The next day the cute dog finds out the cats go in sewers and do gross stuff that gets the cute dog all dirty and not cute anymore. One day an animal patrol person sees the cute dog and takes it to a dog pound.

The cute dog was very lonely in the cage because in the last pound he had his mom in the cage with him. Two weeks later a short woman came in and immediately made eye contact with the cute dog. She went over to the dog and looked at the price tag on the cage. The price of the dog had dropped by a lot because it was not cute anymore. She bought the dog for 200 dollars and took it home. The dog was still sad and had a sad face but soon the woman started to love the dog. She started to clean the dog, and she even took the dog wherever she went. She was a great owner. The cute dog was back to the cutest dog ever and he loved his owner! The cute dog and the owner lived happily ever after.
