

Goldilocks's visit to Her Aunt's House

(An Adaption of Goldilocks and the Three Bears and Little Red Riding Hood)

By Sparsh J.

once upon a time there was a girl named Goldilocks who wanted to go to her aunt's house but she had to cross the forest to get there. She asked her mom if she could go by herself but her mom said no. She argued with her mom until she would let her go. Finally, her mom said yes, but only on three conditions, that she would not go near the bushes, she would stay on the trail, and also that she would not talk to strangers on the way to her aunt's house. Goldilocks promised that she would not do any of those things. The next morning she got ready and her mom told her to bring cookies for her aunt in a basket. After that she set off to her aunt's house. First, she found three paths, she did not know which one to take she was so scared. She tried going on the first one but it was too muddy and too sticky. Then, she tried the second one but there were a lot of thorn bushes which were really sharp. Finally, she tried the last one and it was just right, it was not too muddy, not too sticky, and it didn't have any thorn bushes. So she went on the last one and walked until she saw two paths. One of them had bugs and beetles crawling around and the other one looked just right so she went on that one. She walked for about 1 more mile and then she was tired, she stopped and sat on a rock.

one bear saw the girl and he wanted to eat the cookies she had so he disguised himself as a farmer. He walked to the girl and asked her that what she was doing and she said she was going to meet her aunt and give her some cookies. After that the bear snatched the basket of cookies and ran away. Goldilocks cried so much that she would have nothing to give to her aunt but she cheered up fast and hurried her way down to her aunt's house. She stopped when she found the path split up in two again. Both of them looked good and she was really confused. She picked the second one and walked until she saw a pack of wolves running around so she went back and chose the first path. She hoped that there wouldn't be any more different paths.

She was so happy when she saw her aunt's house she hurried to the house and rang the doorbell. Her aunt answered the doorbell and called her inside. Goldilocks told her the story of how she got here and how a farmer stole her cookies. Her aunt said that she was so happy Goldilocks was safe and that she is not worried about the farmer eating the cookies. Goldilocks and her aunt had a nice chat and had a cup of tea until it was time to go. Goldilocks said bye to her aunt and set off to her aunt's house.
